Dear Sir;

The question I want to answer is number 6-
"Are modifications to the selective service system needed?"

I believe that the selective service system needs some modifications for the system to work.

The reason I say this, because when I was 18 I signed up for the selective service like I was suppose to do. I was 18 I joined the U.S. Navy. Then I did 11 years in the Navy for my country.

But when I went to starting putting in applications for the state and federal jobs, they kept asking if I signed up for the selective service when I was 18 also it ask me what was my selective service number. That is a problem because I did not keep my selective service number when I join the navy.

The modification I would like to see for the selective service system is that if the young man joined the Armed Forces of the United States. And then goes to do a federal job application, when he answers that he was in the military then he should not have to answer if he signed up for the selective service. Joining the military should be good enough to meet that requirement.

Also I think that young ladies from the age 18 and up to 26 should have to sign up for the selective service system. Also if the Democrats wants illegal immigrants to be in America than these illegal immigrants should have to sign up for the selective service system for their new country.

Sincerely,

Leonard M. Puff
